Kaede is a 17 year old girl that just finished high school. She's smart, pretty but got lose morals - not in that sense pervert. It's just that there are bigger problems in the world that scammers and mundane thief, with the monsters and like all other things, so why not help oneself?

Kaede's newly budding power is related to space and time. However, she sucks at controlling it for now and barely qualified at a C level hero.

She's able once every few minutes to perform a flash - short range (5 meters) teleport, for now leaving noise at entrance and exit as well as particle effects indicating a wise enemy where she went. She can also accelerate or decelerate things or people. Enough to dodge easily a baseball thrown at her, not enough to stop an arrow from tearing her a new one.

Kaede scammed people online to get funds for her suit - one for now, other have been commissioned. This one increase her durability and weaponize her flash by allowing her to leave blades behind that can come back in their sheath.

The scammed simp have evolved into the jumper squad.

The apartment thing? Landlord had stopped asking for rent. Turns out the old perv died and Kaede was on the testament. It's good because situation with the parents is... complicated.

100CP + Nobody Knows Who He Is!

Being an Esper is great and all, but there's a problem - people keep forgetting who you are and that you exist. Once they break eye contact, every single living being (except for other Espers or very rare cases) tends to forget you exist, even during a battle! Whatever it is, this phenomena might be tied to your strange Esper abilities.

Shinon Watanabe was a normal person, getting to grow up in a decent neighbourhood and had the best education he could get. Sadly, he ended up as a white collar worker in a bland looking company, always tapping away at his computer with countless Excel data sheets.

Until suddenly... people started to ignore him. It was odd at first, but Shinon decided to investigate - the entire office building kept on forgetting who he was! With enough time, Watanabe realised two things: one, he awakened esper abilities, two, his powers made people unaware of his presence.

After experimenting with his powers, there was one useful thing at the end of the day - local monsters that appeared in his neighbourhood had brief moments where they thought a harmless office worker was in front of them, but then he's gone? Talk about elusive, but that forced Watanabe to spend a lot of money on a highly experimental esper helmet - finally allowing people to dampen his memory loss abilities or intensify them... should an emergency happen.

The Mad Nemesis +200 (Dr. Kusigawa)

Yama was one of the better students in his Ninja Village but found himself at the wrong end of a conspiracy to punish him by several of his Lessers after he revealed to the Village that he had mastered several Ninja Techniques.

He was lured into a trap and nearly killed before he managed to dispose of his assailants. Now hunted and pushed out from his village for the killings he had to run and ran into Doctor Kusigawa who offered safe him from deaths door.

But that was not the only thing the Doctor did. He transformed Yama into a Monster and gave him the Designation Yawann-230. The Mindcontrol Device however malfunctioned on the first Mission that he was sent out on and fried part of his brain.

With severe Memory loss and the profound sense of loss he found himself on the streets of K-City.

He had been equipped for Stealth Missions that might turn violent but now he was kinda lost wandering in his human guise and helping people that looked so similar to the face he saw reflected in buildings and puddles.

His village thinks him dead and he barely remembers them however he knows where one of their hidden cabins would be that is next to never used.

Doctor Riser Kusigawa is a brilliant Geneticist with Strons ESP powers and a truly obsessive Mind. He wants to create the perfect beings for the future and thought that Ninja might very well be perfect for a Basis.

He tested his procedure on countless People already buying off police and politicians with a truly obscene amount of money he received from the patents of dozens of Genetherapies used to fight diseases around the globe.

The Mindcontroll devices he built were far from perfect but Yawann-230 was the first one to ever survive them malfunctioning. He lost connection and when his cleanup squad of monsters arrived Yama was long gone with little trace of where he went.

And as such he wants him back now to find what has made him able to survive and implant it into other monsters of his own design before fusing himself into the perfect creature that will one day save the world.

After a certain candy brand stopped production, its most dedicated fan vowed to make everyone realize their mistake, by force if necessary.

His body is made of plastic, in the form of a man-height candy-wrapper with hairy legs (the legs are also plastic, though it's hard to tell at a glance). He can shoot skittles out of the opening at his top, but they don't actually deal much damage. If eaten in large quantities, someone could get addicted to them.

Skittler can quickly heal damage, but it's only practical outside of battle and he needs to consume sweets and plastic as fuel. Maybe could evolve if given the right stimulus.

Skittler is fairly hard to kill, both his peculiar physiology and avoidance of serious battles allow him to worm his way out of many predicaments.

One candy-wrapper against the cold, uncaring world. But the power of Skittles is all I need! All of those ignorant fools will eat crow, after they taste the rainbow of course!

These humans made a grave mistake! Now that the last of the skittles belong to me, it is only through me that they may taste the rainbow.

She was a good Hunter equipped with powerful Equipment. After extensive Refurbishments she has once again been set loose with the directive to bring back Yawann-320 dead or alive though alive is preferred.

She has a Onetrack mind but sometimes the weak young scared woman still dances across her view making her wonder if this was truly all as worth it as the Doctor said.

Will Wheel

local Contractor Will Wheel. Will Wheel is a mystery : monster or cyborg? What matter is that C class Hero is mainly a S-city army knife when it comes to public work : the colossal assemblage of metal and flesh could morph into various contraption ; excavator, road roller, concrete mixer, lift truck, his potential was impressive. No wonder he worked harder on his mundane job than Hero career : no one else seems to fill this niche in K city.

Bob (or Mike?) the troll

you don't get to sell a product if one's face looks like a troll - then again, one did march in a week ago. His name is Mike, one of the newly hired interns by HR. "Human resources" might need a new name, considering how there's a lot of non-humans out there.

Watanabe had plenty of those before, thankfully not with Bob the Troll. Someone else interviewed him and had to get stitches.

Shinon bought a limousine for dirt cheap from Bob the Troll, the newest member of PR's ever expanding redundant team.

Koichi, the smart guy that trains for medical school,

I'll work hard to become a surgeon. Maybe I can volunteer as Fireman too?

Imade a work out program, I'll go volunteer with Emergency Rescue Team.

Kenichi, the push-over

Always wanted to learn martial arts... Was worried of being too weak to start, but with that logic I'll never do it... I'll look for a Dojo tonight.

-Went to a dojo. The sensei... Yeah, it looks like he knows what he's doing.

Kintoki, the Doesn't-give-a-damn.

Time to pick up sabre practice with the old man again...

Asked the old man to teach me the blade. He looked quite happy with it. Spent several hours doing vertical slices.

Engineering. I landed an internship with hero association - mainly designing, maintenance and building suits enhancing heroes, from technological means to esper headgears and monsterpart-enhanced leather to name a few."

I need battle suits. Of course, I'll provide you with funds. Of course, they are not sufficient and I'll ask you to help me on that. You see, I aim to become a hero, and I lack some offensive ability, while I'm confident on my movement.

Could you design a knife - or other blade, i just want it sharp - that can hover out of its sheath while I position myself, then dashes back in place? Here's for your trouble."

"Clench your fist twice, and the blade hovers. Extend your palm, and it'll fly back into place. There are some small motors inside and propeller embedded under it.

This is a proof-of-concept, but my supervisor was quite interested in the idea. You're formally invited for more testing at the headquarter. Now, excuse me, I'll go sleeping..."
